

The Dental Industry

Cranstoun & Hussein Chartered Accountants have always had a strong link with the medical industry. Since 1961, Cranstoun & Hussein has consistently been involved with medical industry groups, associations and networks.

Although we are based in the Brisbane CBD, the firm has clients throughout Queensland. We already service both western and coastal practices and in most cases undertake regular visits to even our most remote client's practices.

Structuring your Dental Practice

Cranstoun & Hussein are familiar with the types of trading arrangement in place for dentists; whether they be employees, contractors or in practice. We have also advised many clients in relation to structures as well as financial and commercial issues to consider when first commencing a private practice.

We regularly provide clients with a "second opinion" on their trading structures to ensure that their assets are protected and provide recommendations on any issues that we identify during our review. We have been involved with numerous dental practice sales. We are aware of industry trends in the area of amalgamation and can advise you on both the positives and negatives, should this be an option for your practice.

Valuing a Dental Practice

As accredited valuers with some of Australia's leading financial institutions we have extensive experience in valuing dental practices for finance and other business purposes.

We regularly review client's financial results to ensure the business is operating efficiently and to assess if we can recommend any improvements. This process can be extremely helpful as part of the valuation process.

Prepare personal and business budgets

Using simple techniques we can help to answer the popular question; "Where does my money go?" We also regularly prepare practice budgets and provide clients feedback on actual performance to budget.

Our goal is to provide our clients with the most efficient service possible. To this end, we have complemented our experience and knowledge by developing our association and networks with other industry participants and consultants. These include major banks and other financiers, solicitors, insurers and wealth creation specialists.
